Forecast for Monday 14 Jun 2021

Weather: A band of cloud will move across the Park from the northwest during the morning, with a little light rain possible. This cloud will break up around lunchtime to reveal spells of sunshine through the afternoon, perhaps turning hazier with time as high cloud increases. Conditions clearing more widely into the evening and overnight period.

Chance of cloud free mountain/hill tops above 800m: Near nil for much of the morning, but chances rising to 70% for the rest of the day.

Visibility: Cloud bases falling to 300m on windward ground during the morning, with visibility correspondingly very poor. Visibility becoming very good during the afternoon as cloud lifts and breaks.
